

Puerto Rican TV show to be filmed in Scotland

JANE BRADLEY

EDINBURGH and Loch Ness are to be among a handful of UK locations to host a leading Puerto Rican celebrity "cultural" reality TV show.

Puerto Rican comedian Jorge Pabon, widely known in his homeland as El Molusco, will take part in cultural experiences such as staying with a local family and being invited to attend a traditional wedding. The programme's producers are in Scotland this week to scout out potential opportunities for the show, to be filmed in July.

Programme creator Arnaldo Santiago Rivera said: "I thought that it would be a fantastic opportunity for Jorge and Robert

Shelter digital service will tackle housing problems

KATRINE BUSSEY

A HOUSING charity has launched a new digital advice service after the number of people visiting its website for help increased by more than a fifth.

People struggling to get by can now get advice on housing, money and debt advice from Shelter Scotland using their mobile phone, tablet or computer.

An online chat function will allow people to seek help in confidence from the charity's team of trained expert advisers.

The new service has been set up after more than 600,000 visits were made to the advice section on Shelter Scotland's website last year – a rise of almost 22 per cent on the total from 2013 of 492,000.

The charity supports more than 500,000 people a year struggling with money, debt problems or housing issues, with its helpline receiving almost 19,500 calls from people at risk of losing their home – an average of 53 every day.

Shelter Scotland deputy director Alison Watson said: "Thousands of families and individuals across Scotland face a daily struggle to put food on the table and keep a roof over their heads.

"For these people, and many more living on a knife edge, access to accurate and relevant advice is a lifeline and we hope that extending our advice offer →
